

The history of man began the day when our distant ancestors fashioned tools. This ability that these primates had developed marked the beginning of their differentiation. Life would never be the same since then and the improvement of living conditions would be an end in itself. For my company our primary goal is still and always, tools improvement, working conditions, productivity and quality to achieve the ultimate goal of profitability and thereby the well-being of society.

Carl Bélanger
President Mobil.id